A robust likelihood approach to inference about the difference between two multinomial distributions in paired designs

T.S. Tsou

1 Institute of Statistics, Institute of Systems Biology and Bioinformatics, Center for Biotechnology and Biomedical Engineering, National Central University, Jhongli, Taiwan; chopin-mozart0422@gmail.com.
*Presenting author

Keywords. Multinomial distribution; Paired design; Robust likelihood.

Abstract: We propose a new universal robust test to test the equality of two multinomial distributions in paired designs. This test accounts for the within-cluster correlation in a data-driven manner and is easy to compute without a full model specification. We provide theoretical justifications and use simulations and real data analysis to demonstrate the merit of the robust procedure.

Reference